Peer support mental health service

Our client is a US healthcare company that provides a platform for people to address mental health issues through peer support. It works as a community where people can ask for and offer help.

We developed a website and iOS/Android mobile apps from scratch. The functionality included an Agile contact grouping system, messaging, in-app notifications, personal mood status tracking, and more. The project was successfully delivered within 5 months.

Payment and banking platform

We worked with a German CSSF and PCI DSS-compliant payment solutions provider. Due to significant business growth, they've been seeking help with the backend development to finish and launch their software platform.

We helped our client boost their in-house development capacity, modernize the back-end platform, enhance security measures, and achieve the shortest time-to-market term. After completing the main development phase, we also provided continuous support and integrated new features.

A commission-free renting web portal

An Austrian-based real estate company provides a platform for commission-free renting options. An old solution was created with legacy software. Our main goal was to create a user-friendly solution to streamline the rental process, maintaining a positive user experience.

We collaborated closely with Australian teams and transferred legacy code to the modern MVC 4 framework. We also implemented revenue optimization strategies that significantly increased the client's user base and income.
